

Surrender It All

In these bags
What's worth saving
Taxi's waiting
Say Goodbye

To this old house
The life we lived there
That we would dare
To rearrange our lives
Creaking floorboards lead us through the door

As vast as the sky we dream our dreams
In the blink of an eye they're gone it seems
And so we recall that sweet sorrow fall
Surrender it all

Who are we
Making choices
Angry voices
Disapprove

Desperate friends
Try persuasions
Their equations
Don't impress us much
Always wanting, always needing more

We tried so hard to be sincere
Success was the prize, but now it's clear
And so we recall that sweet sorrow fall
Surrender
It all comes and goes
And nobody knows
When one journey ends
A new dream begins

As vast as the sky we dream our dreams
In the blink of an eye they're gone it seems
And so we recall that sweet sorrow fall
Surrender it all

12/25/04, 8:42 PM